

ABSTRACT

Interactive decision-making scenarios in an audio/video broadcast are described. A profile of a user and content information associated with a selected content file are retrieved in response to a selection input command from the user, the selection input command selecting the content file for transmission to the user. A play sequence of the content file is further selected based on the user profile and the content information. Finally, the selected play sequence is presented to the user.